

Phishing Assessments

Phishing is the fraudulent practice of gaining individuals sensitive information such as passwords and credit card information through emails or other online communication by posing as a reputable organisation.

The most common types are deceptive email phishing, spear phishing and business email compromise (BEC).

Who Is It For?

At the heart of 90% of data breaches, phishing is one of the largest cyber threats to organisations around the world. Phishing assessments are for businesses that value their cyber-security and understand the sophistication of the techniques used by hackers that leave even the most intelligent employees vulnerable.

This service is ideal for businesses who are looking for quick, effective and affordable ways to reduce and manage the risk of phishing attacks. Phishing assessments start reducing this risk immediately and also satisfy GDPR and compliance obligations.

How Can We Help?

Our services will educate your employees in a positive and encouraging manner, heightening awareness of phishing attacks, while identifying and helping vulnerable users within your organisation.

Whilst simulating attacks, our consultants utilise Phishing Tackle's security resource library and combine this with at a glance statistics. This strategy makes data hunting easy and allows us to identify vulnerable users and act immediately.

Experienced at delivering a range of vISM services, we can analyse your results and help you to understand how your Phishing solution fits into a wider security strategy.

We'll suggest ways to mitigate your risk up and down the security chain from Phishing. Your results may suggest a need for email delivery rules, extensive staff training or a number of other approaches and we're here to explain the value of all the available options.

What We Test

We test your users cyber awareness by simulating regular, randomised and updated phishing emails or customisable text messages.

Next, Phishing Tackle's proprietary software, combining attacks and breach intelligence generates engaging training, informative landing pages and other educational content to support your next steps.

Following periods of training and system improvements we can perform retests that help you to see how a consistent approach leads to habitual vigilance and long-lasting education.
