

Third Party Risk Assessment

All businesses now have multiple third party suppliers, ranging from SaaS providers to technical support companies.

Supplier compromise is fast becoming a primary attack vector with 59% of all breaches being traced back to a third party. Supplier Review helps you to manage these requirements and build a confidence around one of the largest risks any organisation faces.

Who Is It For?

With 77% of organisations unaware of the extent of their supplier relationships, many businesses do not have visibility of the third parties handling their data.

This service is particularly important for businesses that hold sensitive client data such as payment details, personal identifiers and passwords.

These assessments help you understand whether your suppliers meet the security standards your business relies on, and whether they pose a risk to your data, operations or compliance obligations.

How Can We Help?

Secarma will work with you to assess supplier criticality and deliver a series of interview questions on your behalf. Using our best practice framework, we can then report back to you identifying where your supply chain risks exist and their level of severity.

We'll repeat this exercise once per year to take account of any changes to suppliers or their security arrangements and provide a report that you can use to demonstrate good management of third parties.
